

10 April, 2022

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE -- Sydney, NSW -- On April 23rd at 7:30pm, Noctiluca Arts will present "Wild Things," a concert to benefit Resound, an organization dedicated to replacing musical instruments lost in natural disasters. Founded in 2009 during the Black Sunday bushfires, Resound's current efforts address the flooding and instrument damage at the Northern Rivers Conservatorium in Lismore.

For this special event, Noctiluca Arts will be partnering with The Independent Theatre in North Sydney, presenting a wild and beautiful program of works for flute, cello, and piano, ranging from Irish traditional music to the jazzy harmonies of Nikolai Kapustin, to contemporary Australian composers Ross Edwards and Alex Pozniak -- also featuring works of Brahms, Poulenc, and Kuhlau.

Performing on the concert will be Noctiluca artistic director and flautist Rosie Gallagher, cellist Chris Pidcock of Opus Now and the Sydney Symphony, and a special guest appearance by US-based pianist Lee Dionne of the Merz Trio.

The concert will last approximately one hour with no intermission. Bar service will be available in the lobby beforehand, as well as further reading materials on Resound. Tickets run at $22.50 / $9.50 (student / artist), with a further donation option. All proceeds will support Resound. Purchase tickets online at www.noctiluca.org

===

Noctiluca Arts is dedicated to sharing the light of classical music with diverse audiences through experiences that are exciting, engaging, and equitable.